

SEED SPECIALIST – Central Scotland

About Watson Seeds

Watson Seeds are a long-established seed specialist business, with a reputation built on the traditional values of personal service, sound advice and the highest possible quality products. We enjoy a reputation for offering the highest quality, performing grass and forage mixtures, throughout the UK and Ireland from our range of Castle Mixtures.

The job

A vacancy has arisen within established territory mainly across the central belt of Scotland. The role of Seed Specialist will see you calling directly on our diverse network of farming clients, as well as in conjunction with our distributors, advising and supporting them in selecting the best grass and forage seed products for their requirements.

You will also work to identify opportunities and potential new clients in your region, seeking to understand how Watson Seeds products can add value to their operation. In addition, you will attend various shows across the year and meet with both our clients and intermediaries.

Although working knowledge of agriculture is a distinct advantage, specialist seed experience is not requisite as full training and support will be provided for the right candidate.

What skills do I need?

- Personable and professional.
- A great communicator.
- Organised and motivated.
- Working knowledge of the agricultural industry or similar.

What do we offer?

- Competitive remuneration
- Company car
- Private medical
- Company pension (and access to an IFA)
- Wellbeing service

Interested?

To apply in confidence, please send your CV and covering letter by email to careers@watsonseeds.com